Met Office

NEWS

Wet and windy spell to come

Author: Press Office
14:22 (UTC+1) on Sat 23 Sep 2023

After a settled day for many on Saturday the weather is set to turn more unsettled with the potential for more National severe Weather Warnings by mid-week next week

After a settled day for many on Saturday the weather is set to turn more unsettled with the potential for more National severe Weather Warnings by mid-week next week.

A band of rain will push into the northwest of the UK and a yellow rain warning in place for parts of Scotland from 1 pm Sunday to midnight, with the heaviest and most persistent is expected over higher ground areas of Scotland.

Met Office
@metoffice · Follow

Staying Autumnal with spells of wind and rain 🍂

However, there is a growing signal for a deep area of low pressure to develop as we move towards midweek, which may bring disruption to parts of the UK ⚠️

Full details are uncertain so stay tuned to the latest forecasts ✅

12:02 PM · Sep 23, 2023

290 Reply Share

Read 10 replies

Deputy Chief Forecaster at the Met Office, Mark Sidaway said: “The start of next week will continue showery for many with strong winds in northwestern areas.

“There is the potential for a deep area of low pressure to bring further heavy rain and disruptive winds on Wednesday and Thursday but details on timings and the exact location of potential impacts remain uncertain at this far ahead.”

Keep track of current weather warnings on the weather warning page, when a weather warning is issued, the Met Office recommends staying up to date with the weather in your area.

You can check the latest forecast on our website, by following us on Twitter and Facebook, as well as on our mobile app which is available for iPhone from the App store and for Android from the Google Play store.

Met Office

© Crown Copyright